It is with great pleasure that we present the inaugural edition of the Formosa Journal of Social Sciences, a platform dedicated to the exploration of interdisciplinary ideas, rigorous scholarship, and the pursuit of knowledge within the social sciences.

In an era marked by rapid globalization, technological innovation, and societal transformation, the role of social sciences in understanding and shaping the human experience has never been more critical. This journal seeks to address these challenges by fostering a dialogue among academics, practitioners, and policy-makers, while remaining rooted in the diverse cultural and historical contexts that define our global community.

The Formosa Journal of Social Sciences aims to serve as a nexus for intellectual exchange, providing a space where theoretical insights and empirical studies converge to inform practices and policies. Each issue will feature contributions that reflect the broad spectrum of disciplines within the social sciences, including sociology, political science, economics, anthropology, psychology, and beyond.

This edition features an array of articles that embody the journal's commitment to innovation and relevance. From examining contemporary social issues to revisiting historical frameworks with new lenses, the works presented here are united by a shared dedication to advancing understanding and fostering meaningful change.

We extend our deepest gratitude to the contributors, reviewers, and editorial board members who have worked tirelessly to bring this vision to fruition. Their expertise and commitment have laid the foundation for a journal that aspires to not only disseminate knowledge but also inspire future research and collaboration.

As you engage with the articles in this issue, we invite you to reflect, critique, and contribute to the ongoing conversations that shape our understanding of the world. Together, we can continue to build a vibrant community of inquiry that champions the values of diversity, inclusion, and intellectual curiosity.

Happy Reading
